

This is how many times a responsible adult can vote in general elections.
EVERYTHING you care about can only be conveyed in these Xs

- Represent combines the best of petitions, surveys, and polling
- Easy to answer questions and a conversational approach builds trust and increases participation
- Powerful analysis, groups, targeted messaging, verified profiles, and much more
- Easy to use, anywhere, with extremely high engagement and retention rates ~40% people vote daily
- Virality and gamification are built in
- Vote for representatives for any topic, accelerating decision making

- Getting people to vote on issues is hard. Our vote bots make it easy - 45% of users are currently voting daily.
- They currently use Facebook, Telegram, and Kik, with plans to include Twitter and Slack.
- It can connect directly with your facebook page, or twitter account.
- Issues can optionally be escalated to a human, too, making it a regular and useful point of contact for other issues.

The image displays the Represent platform interface, which is used for creating and analyzing polls. It features a navigation bar with 'Questions', 'Groups', 'Topics', 'Results', and 'People'. A 'FILTER' sidebar on the left allows users to refine results by keyword, group, topic, and staff preferences (e.g., 'Include unanswered', 'Show weighted').

Two main sections are visible: 'MOST CONTENTIOUS(HIGH POLARISATION):' and 'MOST CONTENTIOUS(LOW POLARISATION):'. The first section lists 10 questions with their respective vote counts and percentages. The second section shows a detailed view of the question 'Join the Schengen area.', including a breakdown of responses by sentiment (Strongly disagree, Disagree, Skip/Neutral, Agree, Strongly agree).

Response	Percentage
Strongly agree / Agree	54.55%
Strongly disagree / Disagree	20.91%
Skip / Neutral	14.55%

Collaborative decisions

- A unique feature of Represent is delegated voting, which lets you pick a representative for any topic
- This creates a collaborative approach to decisions, builds trust, harnesses expertise and ideas within the crowd, and ultimately helps decisions reach consensus faster.

'There is a mass of sense lying in a dormant state which good government should quietly harness'
— Thomas Paine
